

Short communication About spiritual energy

Abstract: Most people would like everything to be physical. So they would like spiritual energy to be electro-magnetic or some kind of physical radiation but it is not, not at all.

Consciousness is the eye of the mind open.

Let us stop wondering what is consciousness. That spiritual energy is not something physical is an argument for the existence of the afterlife.

II. Main text

Most people would like everything to be physical. So they would like spiritual energy to be electro-magnetic or some kind of physical radiation but it is not, not at all.

“The mind is a spiritual energy” is not quite correct as spiritual energy produces mathematical waves which are part of the mind and not spiritual energy but from spiritual energy.

Then there is the eye of the mind.

Consciousness is the eye of the mind open.

Let us stop wondering what is consciousness.

That spiritual energy is not something physical is an argument for the existence of the afterlife.

III. Conclusion

Doing research upstream of existing research allows you to have a point of support to deviate from the hypotheses generally made without paying much attention (for instance, the importance of brain waves).

Society does not encourage such upstream research because it most often fails to bring something new while deductions are able to bring something new, even if not quite new.

One has to get rid of parasitic thoughts about one's personality not fit enough.
